

Design your own Constellation

Imagine a time before we knew what the stars of the night sky were—when people looked up and wondered: what was the meaning behind their beauty?

Imagine a time when we knew the stars always appeared in a sequence, and that the night sky could be tracked and used for navigation across the seas. Imagine they are all yours to document, to track, to decipher and name.

Look up on a starry night and note which pattern of stars calls to you.

Note down the shape they make and invent your own constellation.

Give them a name, a story, a purpose.

Once you've completed your constellation, ask a trusted adult to upload a photo of it to the MFM Fundom Facebook group.

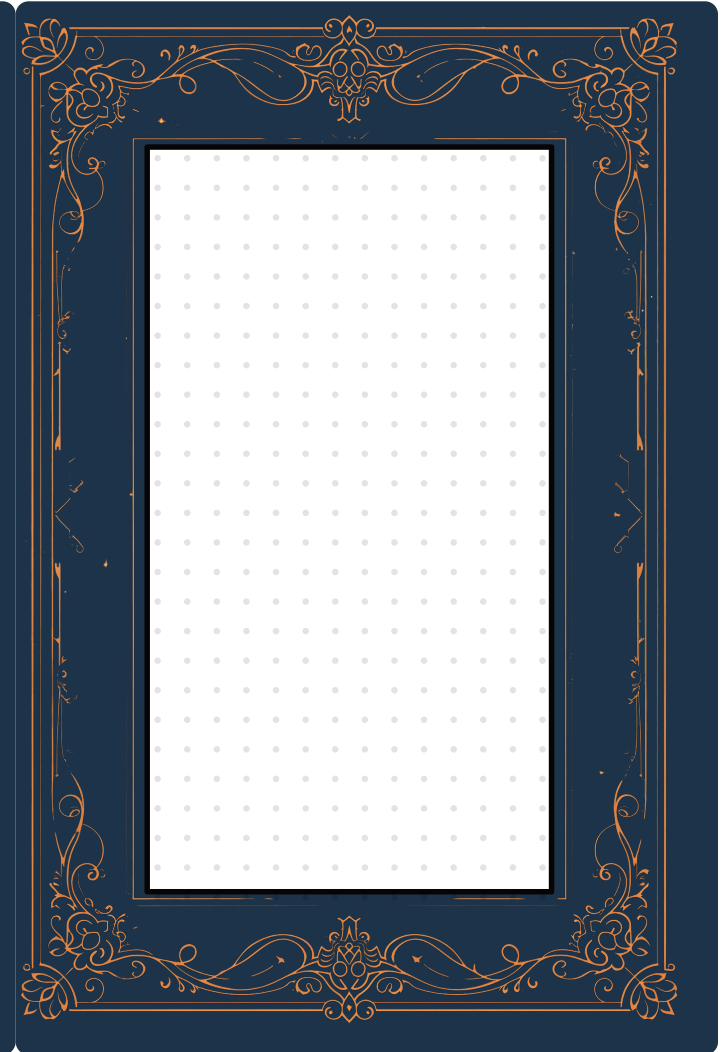

Please include only your first name, your age, and the broad region you live in (for example: 'South England'), so other sky-watchers from around the world can enjoy your creation — and if they live under the same skies, they might try to spot it too!

*Put your constellation story here.
Give it a title. Does it represent a princess, a dragon, a magical instrument or vessel of some sort?*

*Put your star pattern here,
and a drawing of what it represents in your story.*
